THE BUSINESS SITCH-E-EATION

An aged man at the union station

Discussed the business sitch-e-eation,

and some things were mighty bad,

and some were or could make him mad.

That aged man, he stepped my knee—

"D'you know what's wrong with things?" said he.

"I've been in fights," and the old boy glared.

"And I always get whipped when I get scared."

Folks have forgot how to stand and grin.

When hard luck socks 'em on the chin,

There's too much groanin'—not enough hollering.

Too many creeps-hangars, too many grapevines—

It sure don't help a sick man's heart.

To think of nothin' but his fever chart,

There's too many experts tellin' how come.

These old ideots' could be on the hook,

There's too many people with an allit—

I'd call a listen to a darn good bid!

As soon as a quit-hanging crepe

You'll see business is in darn good shape!

I've got on use for golf as a game,

If I speak the language, just the same—

There's too few drivers, an' too many putts—

Plenty cold feet, and not enough guts—

You ain't my son, but if you was mine,

I'd sure be glad to teach you not to whine!

He wasn't satisfied, and his words were rough.

But the old boy seemed to know his staff.

Stove Starts Fire

The farm home of Mrs. E. N. Smith was severely damaged by fire on Monday evening. A fire originating from the cook stove practically ruined the interior of the building. With the aid of fire-fighters from town and neighborhood the fire was extinguished before it destroyed the building. Insurance is on record.

Rain In Spots

On Friday night during a thunderstorm about a half inch of rain fell near the Bozarth farm. On Monday morning what looked like a heavy storm coming from the west proved to be streaky thunder showers of short duration. Yet all those showers are helping to keep the crops alive, but it is a general rain that has been needed, for the wheat is heading out and needs moisture before it will fill.

The Bar U is proving very popular this summer due to the extensive improvements in the way of bathing houses and diving boards. The pool has also been deepened which adds greatly to swimming facilities.

A. E. Woodhall received a broken clavicle and severe injuries in the back when he fell from an open window. The fall, which might have resulted more seriously, was broken by an extension to the roof of the building.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation and thanks to our neighbors and friends in the Champion district who helped us put out the fire in our home and the cleaning up afterwards.

Mrs. E. N. Smith,
Morgan W. Smith.

High School Promotion

Under the unit system, students are required to make 50% to pass in each subject. Term examinations were counted 30% and the finals 70% in determining the marks. In the following summary only average is given.

Home Boys Do Well

Champion citizens were well represented at the Carmangay Stampede, some of the local boys took part in the amateur events and won prizes. Other attractions of local interest was the softball game between the Bluebirds and the Orphans in which the former took the game by a 38-33 score. Champion then were victorious in their scheduled game with Stavely who was pulled off at the close of the Stampede events. It was a good game the score being 13-13.

Two or three Champion boys were in the money at the Carmangay Stampede on Friday. J. Sanderson got 1st in the amateur horse riding with $20.00, and C. L. Oviatt a share in the money in the rest of the money. A. Howerton was second in the steer riding, and in the boys castrating, Goodnight and Wellman drew some money.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Mason and Miss Piggly stopped in town on Sunday and spent a few hours visiting old friends. Mr. and Mrs. Mason were enroute to Portland where they will spend their holidays.

E. H. Griffin, C. Rhodes, J. A. Long, A. Hopkins, A. Summerhill, W. J. Ellis, and R. H. Matlock and the Municipal district meeting held in Vulcan last week. Mr. Griffin was nominated vice president.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Dupre accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. DePape of Chicago are spending the week holidaying at Banff, Yoho and the Calgary Stampede.

The absent-minded accountant was in a state of complete abstraction when a telegram arrived for him. Tearing it open, he discovered he was the father of triplets!

"Any reply?" inquired the messenger.

"Er—yes," said the accountant. "Tell them to check the addition."

A member of the government while working with friends, had to pack hurriedly and go, leaving behind him his dress trousers.

On his arrival in London he wired his host: "Did I leave trousers behind?" And his host replied: "You had a pair on when you left here."

Be Careful!

On Tuesday Day, in a riot at Regina, precipitated by relief camp strikers when police attempted the arrest of their leaders, one man was killed, in the neighborhood of one hundred persons more or less seriously injured, and damage done to property estimated at around $25,000. The news of this happening filled the papers, newspaper's "extras" flooded the streets, reports were telegraphed all over the continent, and cables carried the news to Great Britain and foreign lands. For a time it was almost the sole topic of conversation, and called forth questions and discussions in the House of Commons. The Federal Government promised a searching investigation.

The Ontario Government is publishing a series of advertisements in the newspapers of that province. One such advertisement appearing almost simultaneously with the Regina riot says: "In Ontario, during 1934, there were nearly 10,000 automobile accidents, 512 people were killed, 3,990 people were injured, a considerable increase over 1933." No estimate was given of the total damage resulting from these 10,000 accidents, but it must have reached a total well up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not into the millions.

Here are two sets of figures—two pictures if you will. Just consider them for a moment.

In one instance, one man was killed and approximately 100 persons injured, most of them only slightly. Yet the whole Dominion is shocked, parliament is aroused, the law has been ignored, flouted, a crime committed. Immediate government action is demanded by practically all the people.

In another, thousands were injured, many of whom were maimed and disabled for life, property damage was enormous. But only a passing mention in the local newspapers at the time of each accident, and possibly some casual local comment, but, generally speaking, the public displays little concern and accepts the situation with smug complacency.

Is it not time that the Canadian people shed their indifference in regard to these day by day highway tragedies? Let us turn our thoughts to put an end to "Outlaws" must start thinking safety; that it must be evident to all thinking people that "this must stop."

But how is it to be stopped? It is quite correct to say that people must "think" safety; but they must put their thinking into actual practice and "act" safely. But people will say, in the Regina incident the law was broken, but too often was the breaking of the law voluntary. Motorists are accountable according to provincial statute books and our municipal laws, team with laws and regulations governing the operation of automobiles. Constituted authority has done its part in endeavoring to provide for safety, and to the best of its ability it endeavors to enforce these laws and regulations, but it is an enormous task over hundreds of thousands of miles of roads and highways.

Let us all think to stop manslaughter on the highways, and that for the individual motorists to stop it—stop by strictly obeying the laws which have been enacted for their protection and for the protection of others. It is disregard of the law that is the root cause of the trouble. Motorists must discipline themselves; not be disciplined by the law. It is pointed out, for example, that there were more than 800 bicycle riders killed or injured in Ontario last year. Bicyclists, especially children, are often very carefree in their cycling. They must learn to "act" safely, to "twist" as careful. There must remember that they are in the heavier vehicle. At stop signs and intersections they must "stop." Instead of taking so many things for granted, they must make sure that brakes, tires, lights, are effective; otherwise serious trouble may lie ahead.

Some motorists consider that they are being taxed beyond what is reasonable. New makes of cars are more powerful, speedier, etc., than drivers of these are under a greater responsibility than ever before. They must remember that the old cars are not so speedy, and govern themselves accordingly when passing such cars. These are only a few "musts"; there are many others that might be mentioned.

Society must have laws and regulations. They deliver strict messages "stop" signs, and take all manner of chances while knowing their action is contrary to law. But with the mounting toll of deaths and accidents there is bound to be more law, not less, greater restrictions instead of fewer of them. Public opinion will demand and insist on this. So if motorists desire to be free of so much law, they must refrain from being a law unto themselves; rather they must discipline themselves and not act as if they were alone.

On the other hand, pedestrians and others than motorists using the highways must recognize that motorists have certain rights which ought to be respected. It is largely through the payment of license fees and gas taxes by motorists that our modern highways have been created and are maintained. Accidents are by far the most common.

Citizens are reputed to be a law-abiding people. A riot is an exceptional occurrence in this country. Law must be respected and obeyed. But in view of the awful death and accident toll on our highways, there should be—must be—not merely observance of the letter of the law, but the whole spirit of it. In a word, the most important law of all for motorists, pedestrians, and others, is "Be Careful." Being careful, practising safety first, will result in the observance of all law.

Makes Ideal Insulator

Unexpected virtues have been discovered in the oily seaweed. When tightly packed it forms an ideal insulating material, capable of condensing water or even fire. Scientific tests prove that a mat of seaweed, half an inch thick is more effective than a brick wall twelve inches thick. The seaweed has besides only-fourth the weight of ordinary insulating material.

City In Miniature
Manor Heath, one of the most famous mansions of Halifax, England, and the house in which the King and Queen resided in 1912, has been standing empty since the city bought it for £100,000. It had a gilded age; automatic traffic signals, telephone poles made of pines with copper arm soldered on separately, and the trees, made of sea pinks, dried and painted. The model was built by a Plymouth business man.

China Growing Tobacco
As a first step toward attempting to decrease China's very large imports of American tobacco, the ministry of finance has instructed the tobacco and wine tax bureau in six provinces to examine with the growing of smoking of American tobacco on Chinese soil.

Seventy of every 100 men in Birmingham who were idle in 1931 have returned to work.

Must Have General Knowledge

Recruits To Metropolitan Police Have Tricky Test

Somebody should revise that song, one line of which runs: "If you want to know the time ask a policeman!" These days it does not go nearly far enough in London.

For instance, do you want to know the advantages of the hire purchase system to the buyer? Or to the seller? If you are at all curious about it, ask a policeman.

Or do you want to know why a steam engine has a fly-wheel?

If in an unusually enquiring mood you can ask the same constabulary as a fire burns more rapidly if a newspaper is placed in front of it. why a steam engine has a fly-wheel; why a good road remains in good condition for a considerable time; why lead is commonly used for water pipes in houses.

Or being of a more sporting than scientific frame of mind, ask the same constabulary to describe to you what is meant by a knock-out; when a fish is stymied; catching a crab or body-line boating.

The new policeman will be able to answer you with an each on all of these posers, and a good many more.

The reason? Well, these were some of the questions given to recruits to the Metropolitan force, and they were only allowed an hour in which to answer them.

There were more, even more tricky, but the above is a good sample.

Astronomer Views Sun Spots

These Spectacles Reveal Large Sun Spots

Whirlpools of flame, large enough to swallow up the earth, are marching across the face of the sun.

Clouds stayed away from the sun long enough recently to give H. S. Morris, director of the National Observatory, and visitors a glimpse of the sun spots.

The spots at present consist of a group of three or four near one edge of the sun's face and a single large one near the opposite side of the sun.

Sun spots, similar to cyclonic disturbances in the earth's atmosphere, are whirlpools or whirlwinds in the brilliant outer envelope of the sun, explains the maker inner portion.

About two years ago a period of sun spot activity was observed and the activity will last for about another nine years.

Some persons attribute disturbed weather conditions on the earth to the sun. They are believed to produce, also, spectacular displays of northern lights.

Study Water Resources

Engineers Now Engaged In Work Over Wide Area

Geological survey of the southern drought section of Saskatchewan is under way.

Recently 80 senior students, drawn from the engineering department of the Saskatchewan University, started work.

Traveling in 16 up-to-date motor trucks, the survey parties will investigate water resources of approximately 100,000 square miles in southern Saskatchewan and central Alberta.

The survey party has been organized into 20 sub-parties, each comprising an engineering graduate and two senior students.

The work is being conducted under the direction of M. R. B. MacKay, Dominion geologist, and the area extends from the Manitoba boundary west to near Lethbridge, and from the international boundary north to near Saskatoon.

Millionaires Leaving

Heavy Taxation Cause Of Canada Leaving Two Wealthy Citizens

The Toronto Telegram says: "Canada is to lose two of her wealthiest citizens, and, incidentally with their departure the federal government's annual income tax will be reduced by several million dollars." The recent report that William H. Wright, with an annual income of about $2,000,000, is definitely leaving Canada, is now followed by one that Harry Oakes, who possesses an income of nearly $3,000,000 a year, may also leave the country to reside permanently in England," says the Telegram.

"The income tax paid by these two men alone to the federal government amounts to nearly $3,000,000 each year," according to the Telegram. William H. Wright, vice-president of Lake Shore Mines and vice-president of Wright-Hargreaves Mines, has definitely announced his intention to leave Canada, the Telegram adds. He will reside in the United States.

Mr. Wright leaves in September, and his place will be taken by his recent resignation from the presidency of Lake Shore Mines."

According to the Telegram, Mr. Oakes has bought a house in London, England, and it is rumored he will take up residence in the United States. Mr. Wright leaves in September, and his place will be taken by his recent resignation from the presidency of Lake Shore Mines."

Rust Resisting Wheat

Scientists Have Advanced Far Towards Reaching The Goal

Hope for development of rust resisting wheat was focused by Prof. T. A. Kieselbach of the University of Illinois, and the state's present stem rust scourge, according to wheat scientists, he pointed out, already had advanced far toward this goal. The noted agronomist said the 1935 fungus threat spurred a generation-old search for varieties of grain.

He is experimenting now with a special strain that may greatly reduce the susceptibility of winter wheat to stem rust.

He pointed to the planting of 3,000,000 acres of "Ceres" spring wheat, developed by the Argentia Research Station, K. W. Alderman of the North Dakota Agricultural College, and said it would not suffer half as much from stem rust as other varieties.

Hot Weather Story

Toronto Man Tells Yarn About A Fish

Five Toronto fishermen declare this to be a true fish story.

When Walter Sampson, Toronto, landed a 100-pound trout at Lindsay it fell on a rock, freezing it to the hook. Then it reared up and started dancing straight at him.

The bewildered fisherman picked up a heavy stone to stop the fantastic progress of his catch, when he noticed the fish was being borne snout along by a four-foot water snake.

The snake glided to the water's edge where it released the fish, which swam quickly away.

British Mystery Air Craft

Claimed To Be The World's Heaviest Air Fighter

The British-built biplane airplane "Fairy Funtions," claimed to be the heaviest armed air fighter in the world, will be brought from its closely-guarded hangar at Hendon soon to roar over the heads of experts in a display for the Society of British Aircraft Constructors.

The ship carries four machine guns, one on each lower wing and two atop the fuselage, and also a quick firing gun which throws 20-mm. shells.

The gun carries 60 shells, fired through the propeller hub instead of through synchronized spacing of the whirling blades.

This new machine, expected to reach a speed of 220 miles per hour, has been selected and built at a British factory to compete in the international fighting "plane competition to be held in Belgium in July.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a shy, responsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly she finds that her dutiful, diligent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a hurried return to Canada. At first she is bitter, but receives from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consternation Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. They are met at the railway station by Mr. Adams, a kindly man who introduces Mark and Matthew Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine. Nancy's first impression of Pine Ridge, which village causes distress to both Nancy and Jack because of its poverty, appearance and general look of poverty.

Great On With The Story

"It's gorgeous, isn't it?" breathed Nancy. "I'm going to love this room."

Cousin Columbine smiled faintly. "It's on best, and I'm glad to see that you appreciate it. Jack will be next to you with only a door between. I sleep downstairs; and as I stated in my letter, Aurora goes home at night. Victor Tubbs is an inveterate gambler, and spends large amounts to the same thing; and his wife has supported him for years; a state of affairs that satisfies them both, though it makes me furious. However, it's none of my business; and if any man wants to marry her, I say to the devil for such a key specimen, why worry, as Mark Adams would say? 'Never! I'll leave you in peace. No doubt you'll prefer to unpack alone though Aurora was fit to see your wardrobe, and if she had, no more than a few odds and ends would have escaped her eyes, and the account would have been spread from one end of Pine Ridge to the other before she slept tonight.'

The old lady moved toward the door, then stopped to add: "I need a laundress, and I mean that in both the wall. Suppose at six sharp—so Aurora can get home to feed her precious Victor. There's water in the pitcher; but you may wash in the bathroom if you prefer."

She was gone at last, leaving Nancy rather breathless with instruction.

tions. Jack had departed to his own quarters, and the girl stood quite still, looking about curiously. She had meant the view, of course, when she told Cousin Columbine that she loved the room. Now, sitting down in the comfortable, well-upholstered "bedroom chair," she wondered how it was possible to get so many ugly things into one place.

The bed! Towering black walnut furniture. It was cold comfort to remember that the old grandfather had had one almost as elaborate at Edgemere. A bureau to match; even a washstand, behind which hung a square of linen to protect the wall panel. Hadn't she heard something that was called "splashes" in the dark ages when people used such things?

Nancy arose to regard this curious antique on which, embroiled in red cotton, was an infant splashing happily in a wash bowl, with a "Our Darling, where did you come from?"

"How darling, where did you come from?"

"Must we wash with that monstrous bath for months and months?" Must we wash in that bowl—ever brush her teeth into it?

The girl could have wept for her own tiled dressing room; then she remembered that it was no longer there. She was alone. She stood by the glass-paneled, double-locked table between the windows—a patent rocking chair upholstered in flowered carpet—shrub above the air-tight stove on which stood two blue vases and what appeared to be a dried botanical specimen, mysteriously glued together, with a clock in the centre, a silent timepiece now, probably useless save as an "ornament."

Nancy's eyes lifted to the wall paper, a nondescript, faded tan, which, she decided, "might be good."

Her hands plucked two thin goosefeathers. They were simply terrible; an oil painting of a deformed looking kitten playing with a ball of yarn, and a steel engraving of General Grant. Could anything be more depressing?

As if to get away from all these objects, Nancy moved to a window, half sick at thought of the long weeks ahead. Night was descending, and even the Peak, rising now against a gloomy sky, was dim.

At the end of the corridor, the entrance to their arrival—the station had left during the wonderful ride in Mark Adams' fitter—her interest in this new part of her country—even the girl's sense of humor were徒然に失われた。

She was about to run to almost any boy's appetite.

There was no doubt that Aurora could cook a steak; and with unexpected tact, Jack had done most of the talking, and she had been silent, except for a brief interval after what she now called "the big storm."

And when Aurora had gone, Jack carried that awful lamp into the sitting room, and Cousin Columbine remained, castigating him.

"And did your father find us?"

"Not them. Not ever to any great extent, I suppose," said Cousin Columbine, "but he never saw her. Mother never saw her. She died in 1874, when I was fifteen. A wonderful woman, my dears. She had the true pioneer spirit, and not the body language of the modern housewife."

"She was only thirty-five when she left us to join my little brother who died in infancy."

WAS CONSTIPATED FOR 30 YEARSWoman's Long Search for a Remedy

The trouble with most remedies for constipation, as this woman found, is that they give only temporary relief. Thinking at last found a permanent cure, she wrote to the author of this column:

"For upwards of 30 years I was a victim of acute constipation. I tried practically every remedy I could find, and even now, when I am about 60, I am just as bad as ever. Three years ago I began taking Kruschen Salts, and every morning since, and every morning so long as I have taken them, I have been free of my Kruschen. I honestly feel at different women. My bowels act to the best advantage when I take Kruschen Salts, and my complexion is better, and I feel well I am looking. My only regret is that I didn't try Kruschen Salts sooner."

Jack shook his head, remarking in muffled tones: "She's a wonder, isn't she? Who else would have thought of cooking up that letter and sending it off like she did?"

"I think she's a genius," said Cousin Columbine, "and she's a good cook. You can never be too late to live up to, Sis, if you ask me. Hop into bed. I'll open the windows. And don't forget that breakfast's at seven sharp."

Sister Sis, not quite quickly to notice that night, said: "She lay there all night, reading a patchwork quilt (whose weight, she wrote Aunt Judy later, was "almost crushing"), and thought about the evening that had just passed. There must be some truth in Jack's words, though."

What else could account for her more cheerful frame of mind? For Nancy had been ravenous despite that slice of chocolate cake—the ugly, green-brown banana, and a lamp in the centre of the table that was about to run to ruin almost any boy's appetite.

There was no doubt that Aurora could cook a steak; and with unexpected tact, Jack had done most of the talking, and she had been silent, except for a brief interval after what she now called "the big storm."

And when Aurora had gone, Jack carried that awful lamp into the sitting room, and Cousin Columbine remained, castigating him.

"And did your father find us?"

"Not them. Not ever to any great extent, I suppose," said Cousin Columbine, "but he never saw her. Mother never saw her. She died in 1874, when I was fifteen. A wonderful woman, my dears. She had the true pioneer spirit, and not the body language of the modern housewife."

"She was only thirty-five when she left us to join my little brother who died in infancy."

Historic Rock Blasted30-Foot Lip Overhanging Gorge Slips Away

With flashes of flame and a rumbling that introduced a new note into the age-old symphony of the Niagara cataract, 2,000 tons of rock were burst into the gorge at the foot of the falls at Niagara Falls, July 1st, as two explosions shattered part of Table Rock, famed look-out point at the brink of the falls.

While a holiday crowd estimated at 40,000 persons viewed the brief drama, the authorities said that the Canadian sides of the river, 1,000 tons were blown into the gorge. Scenic beauty and contour of the falls was unaffected.

Presently the blast had subsided, and the crowd was on a moonlit walk. Eighty-five holes, each 5 feet deep, were drilled into the lip which had a length of 150 feet and a thickness of 15 feet. Into each were placed three sticks of dynamite and five pounds of black powder after the holes had been dried by compressed air.

The ledge, estimated by parks commission officials to contain more than 5,000 tons of rock, was blasted away, revealing a 30-foot lip overhanging the gorge, which will be called Honeymoon Point, after visits of scores of honeymooners who declared unsafe due to erosion.

KEEN'S D.S.F. MUSTARD

Made from seed grown especially in the Fens of England. The shells or hulls are removed so all the virtue being in the inner seeds, Keen's D.S.F. Mustard is a unique blend of mustard seeds, giving a full, fiery flavor.

Little Helps For This Week

The righteous shall be glad in the Lord and shall trust in him. Psalm 44:10.

The heart that trusts forever
A word peace within it springs,
Come good or ill,
Whatever it may bring, it is His will.

He will always give a spiced life of stews and patches, but he will live with a divine unity. He will cease from what is base and frivolous in his life, and be content with all places and with any service he can render. He will carry front the name of the integrity of trust that carries God with him, and so hath already the whole future in his heart—R. W. Emerson.

He who believes in God is not careful for the morrow but labors joyfully for the day, and so on the other hand must work and toil, yet never be careful or anxious, but commit all to Him and live in serene tranquility; with a quiet heart as one who sleeps safely—Martin Luther.

Enters Genius Class

The breathless onion is almost ready to make its appearance on the cosmic scene, Lloyd Shanklin, G.C.F.P., president of the United Brothers of Vegetarianism, announced. Shanklin said the new onion was so different from the present tearful species that it didn't even taste like an onion. It is odorless and stainless.

Seen But Not Heard

Grizzly bears are often seen in the woods in those long necks of theirs, which is the reason they are like good little girls and boys and are seen, but not heard. For giraffes hardly ever make a sound.

The spring flow of 22 rivers in White Russia is being studied to ascertain the power resources of Soviet Russia.

The cost of living, which reached its peak in 1920, has declined; but on the 1913 basis it is still much higher than the price of gasoline. In 1934 the cost of living was 28.7 per cent. higher but the price of gasoline was 26.4 per cent lower than in 1913. This data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

LIVING COSTS MORE BUT GASOLINE COSTS LESS

THE cost of living in Canada in 1934 was approximately 21 per cent. higher and the price of gasoline 28 per cent. lower than in 1913. The price of gasoline never rose so high as a peak as did the cost of living. Since 1920 gasoline prices have declined almost continuously to the present low level.

Imperial Oil has always sought for economical ways of doing business and has always passed on to the consumer the benefits of such economies. Imperial Oil operates on a very small profit and in 1934 earned an average of slightly more than one-half of one cent per gallon on gasoline.

Not only is gasoline cheaper than ever—it is better than ever. Imperial Oil research laboratories played a leading part in developing fuels for modern motors. Imperial gasoline of 1935 is a far better gasoline than that of 1913 yet it sells at a price considerably lower.
